Evening Division Meeting
Thursday, August 4, 1988 at 6:30 p.m.
Machinist's Union Hall
“The Dog Days of August”

To celebrate the final month of summer, the Evening Division will host a salute to the “Dog Days of August” with a potluck supper and combination Dog Show/Project Exchange. Note the early 6:30 p.m. start. Bring a dish (main dish, salad, bread or dessert) for eight to share, plate and utensils. MQ will provide coffee and lemonade. After time to socialize, the members will present the program. Each of us has tucked away in the darkest corner of a closet, an unfinished quilt project which didn’t turn out quite the way we expected or which failed to sustain our initial burst of enthusiasm. Perhaps you are the persevering type and finished your “dog” despite all obstacles. Let us applaud your accomplishment. Remember—your unfinished “dog” is another quilter’s treasure. Unfinished projects may be exchanged at the close of the show and all will eventually find a home with a church group to be completed.

At the July meeting a challenge was given to all Evening Division quilters—if you missed the meeting you may still choose to participate. The challenge is to make a 24” sq. wall hanging either pieced or applique, original or traditional design in the fabrics provided. The packets with instructions will be distributed at the August evening meeting, so if you wish to participate, contact Pam Nelson or Maureen Heaney. The cost of the packet will be approximately $7.00 and an additional $1.65 postage if it needs to be mailed to you. The wallhanging should be finished for the November meeting when they will be displayed by all participants.

Daytime Meeting
Friday, August 12, 1988, 10 a.m.
Brooklyn Center Community Center

The August meeting will feature a Show and Tell by the Riverbend Quilters. This group is having a big show in Jackson, MN September 17 and 18. (See ad: “Quilts and Sew Forth.”) There may be a short second feature at the meeting. Note change in meeting location.

Jeannette's Roots

Whenever Mother's Day or my birthday or other "gift" days come along, my family asks, "What can we get you?" I always answer, "One more hour a day and one more day a week." So far nobody has come up with this ideal gift, TIME.

Where do we find it? I have found the answer. We steal it! We steal it from sleeping time. I am an a.m. thief. I love the mornings. I know people who are p.m. thieves, working after everybody is in bed and the house is all their own. We steal it from domestic chore time. Let's strike a medal for the person who invented the automatic washer and permanent press shirts.

Do you realize how many stitches you can take in the 15 minutes you wait for unpunctual friends? Don't give up on those kinds of friends. They are giving you TIME.

Finally, there are what are called the "golden years." I will have to live to be 156 years old to get all the projects done that I have in mind. See you in 2088!

Prairie Star Quilt Discovery Day—Another High For Participants

How does a Quilt Discovery Day Coordinator feel at the end of a 1½ day documentation event?
Tired!
Happy!

Proud of her area's quilts. Proud of her team of volunteers who gave up Father's Day family parties, worked double shifts, performed with competence and growing enthusiasm, ending two days saying, "I want to be more involved in this project."

She shares the satisfaction of the team in being part of something important that wouldn't have happened if they hadn't said, "Yes, we'll do it."

High points of the Prairie Star Quilt Discovery Day:
- Seeing the faces and hearing the "Oh's" when quilt owners saw their quilts mounted for photography. Across the gym they looked like entirely different quilts.
- Helping quilt owners out the door while they cradled their treasures and hearing, "I learned so much! I'm going to talk to my aunt right away. I'm sure she'll remember more about the quilts my mother made."
- Having the former president of the county historical society stop in, saying, "Dick says his wife is so wrapped up in this, I thought I'd better see what was happening."
- Getting together at the end of the day to unwind over dinner with project team members who could stay over. At first we were almost numb with fatigue but, as we shared the events of the day, excitement grew, conversation rolled, and we sensed the camaraderie of achievement through teamwork.

If the Minnesota Quilt Project is to hold 75 Quilt Discovery Days in the next three years, an expanded pool of volunteers is needed. My recommendation: schedule your area's Quilt Discovery Day a year ahead. If all 1989 QD Days were set by January 1, guilds like ours could commit a team of experienced workers to help with a number of them. Early scheduling would also make possible more documentation training for people who are committing themselves to working for specific QD Days during the year.

Do You Want to Have a Quilt Discovery Day in Your Area?

Worried about setting up a Quilt Discovery Day in your area? So were we—but not after we had a small scale practice day for the members of quilt groups in Worthington and Fulda and other interested people. We got a feeling for the process and the location and trained our members at the same time. Enthusiasm and excitement grew and we set July 23 as the date for our first public Quilt Discovery Day.

We appreciated the help of Jean Hatch and others who had worked at other Discovery Days—their experience and suggestions were most valuable.

The morning began at 8:00 with a general introduction to the project. With everything set up as it would be for a public Discovery Day, a quilt was followed through the whole process. Lots of questions were asked and problem areas corrected.

After a lunch break, we documented 18 quilts that our members had brought in. All of us—interviewers, documenters and photographers—had a chance to discover problems of the location and make the changes before July 23rd.

To publicize our Quilt Discovery Day, we did the physical documentation and photography of the quilt in the Nobles County Historical Society during the 4th of July celebration at the Pioneer Village in Worthington. Visitors had a chance to see the old quilts up close and listed to the documentation and we had a chance to publicize our upcoming Quilt Discovery Day.

One of the quilts documented at the Prairie Star Quilt Discovery Day, this red and white beauty, combines cut paper applique with pieced feathered stars. It was presented to a family leaving Illinois and heading west in 1874.
1988 Minnesota State Fair

State Fair time is right around the corner. This year we have been assigned two of the busiest days—Sunday, Sept. 4 and Labor Day, Sept. 5. What an opportunity to reach so many people! I will have sign-up sheets at the August evening and day meetings. We will once again try to have 4 people to a 4 hour shift—shifts being 9 a.m.-1 p.m., 1-5 p.m. and 5-9 p.m. Volunteers get a free ticket to admit them to the fair. I can’t make the August meetings and want to quilt at the Fair call 784-4501 or write Faye Bodenhamer, 7868 Lois Lane, Lino Lakes, MN 55104.

Quilt Group Forming!

We would like to announce the formation of a small quilt group to meet evenings in the northern suburbs. Quilters interested in joining others to share and stitch in the Anoka-Brooklyn Park-Maple Grove area please call Jenny Riebe at 421-4637 for more information.

Vice President’s Report

Reprinted from Prairie Star Quilters Guild, July, 1988

I found this article while reading the paper during the recent summit.

18 Hour Days Create a Superpower Gift

Julie Spidell doesn’t usually work 18 hour days, especially now that she’s 67, but she made an exception for President Reagan and his wife, Nancy. “I worked without stopping for three straight weeks—from 6:30 in the morning to 11:00 at night,” said Spidell, who was chosen to make a quilt that Mrs. Reagan gave to Raisa Gorbachev during this week’s Moscow summit.

“I was so excited my hands trembled,” Spidell of Raleigh, NC, said. “It has to be one of the greatest compliments a craftsman can receive.”

Spidell said she was commissioned to stitch the quilt in April by a local antique dealer who is a friend of an officer in the State Department’s office of protocol.

At the ceremonial closing dinner, Spidell’s quilt, an eight foot square of cobweb quilting appliqued with coral-pink flowers in green baskets, seemed to strike just the right cheerful note.

“A quilt is so down-home—it’s like a nice, warm, friendly thing from the grass-roots people of the United States,” said Spidell.

After reading this I watched TV hoping to see the presentation on the news. I never did. Did you?

Shelley Cords-Swanson Receives Grant to Make Quilts

Shelley Cords-Swanson, artist, quilter, cartographer (map maker), park designer, teacher, farmer, woodworker, has been awarded an Emerging Artist grant for $500 through the McKnight/S.W. Minnesota Arts and Humanities Council Grant Program. She will use the grant money to design and construct four topographic art quilts. Shelley and her husband, Doug Swanson farm near Odin, about 11 miles southeast of Windom, MN. She also teaches part-time at Mankato State University, has taught geography at Gustavus Adolphus College, and teaches in the gifted and talented program at Mt. Lake, MN schools.

Shelley's interest in topographical mapmaking and her background in art have merged in making several art quilts interpreting the contours of a landscape as they would appear on a topographical map. Her "Contour Interval" was exhibited at the 1987 Sentimental Journey show at St. Peter. Her work in several art media has been exhibited in a number of galleries and she does commission work. One of her quilts hangs in the home of a Gustavus Adolphus professor. It is entitled "Topophilia" and depicts ravine topography found on the Minnesota River.

If its description of Shelley's work sounds serious or academic, it is misleading. A sense of humor comes through in her work.

Shelley is program chair for the Prairie Star Quilters. Last summer she hosted a guild meeting for more than 40 members in her farm woodworking shop which she converted from a chicken house. She demonstrated a number of ways of mounting quilts for wall display. She missed the June Prairie Star Quilt Discovery Day because she was in California designing and constructing cabinets for a business office. Her role in the family's farm operation she describes as "maintenance engineer." She has finished re-roofing several farm buildings and can tell you how to get off a barn roof in one piece when your ladder blows down in the wind.

For any reader who feels you are quilting in a different league, you may have more in common with Shelley than you think. Shelley's first quilt was a full-size traditional Lone Star which took her four years to complete. It is now mounted on the sloping ceiling above her bed.

The Quilter's Confession of Sin and Absolution

Reprinted from Christ The Servant Lutheran Church bulletin

I am a rebel, a roaming rebel.
And I am guilty, I know I am.
I broke away, I broke with God.
Just like a stranger, I went my own way.
And I deserve to be rejected.
But I am sorry for all my sin.
I want to be at one with God.
Please take my quilt, Lord. Accept me again!

Slightly Off Grain by Carol Wagner
MQ Lecture Series Presents
Ann Boyce

Ann Boyce is a nationally known quiltmaker, teacher, and freelance designer, and she will be the guest teacher and lecturer at our Fall Lecture Series, October 6-8, 1988. She teaches sewing workshops to both quilting and sewing groups. Her mastery of machine techniques has earned her the title, "Late Night Machine Queen." Her design projects have appeared in Woman's Day, McCall's Needlework & Crafts, Creative Quilting, Quilting USA, Threads, Country Handcrafts as well as many, many other publications. Ann has been profiled in Quilter's Newsletter, American Quilter, and Creative Ideas for Living, and she has had her garments included in the 1985 Fairfield/Concord Starburst Show as well as their 1986 Royal Star Show. She has taught at the Vermont Quilt Festival, Houston Quilt Festival, and the American Quilter's Society show, plus many others.

Ann will lecture on Thursday evening, "Late Night with the Machine Queen II," the wall quilts and on Friday morning, "Late Night with the Machine Queen I," fashion show, (Have you ever seen a "real" house dress?) Both of these are wonderfully witty and creative lectures.

Her Friday afternoon workshop, "Putting on the Giltz," will teach how to sew and handle several types of lamés and glittery fabrics to add to your quilting and sewing projects, how to make a dazzling garment. Her techniques avoid the problems associated with these fabrics. The $15 class fee will include a packet of same lamés.

Saturday's all-day workshop is "3-D Machine Applique" and Ann will teach a machine appliqué variation to make three-dimensional flowers and leaves as well as some background quilting techniques. Imagine how this can enhance a vest or wall hanging! The class fee of $20 includes the cotton batting.

A sewing machine is required for both of these classes, but the classes are expected to be at a location that has parking a few steps from the door. (A Roseville location is currently under negotiation and should be confirmed shortly.) Supply lists will be mailed later to all registrants. If you have questions, call Carol Wagner, 488-6286 or Judy Petersen, 476-8381.
